Pop-up card tote, tote bag, shoulder bag. Photo Credit: Vintage Los Angeles. "Submitted for your consideration is this handsome leather tote, which is designed to resemble the classic 1960's hardcover book bag. Made from well-used and aged leather with a black matte finish, this tote comes with two straps, an interior divider, and a zipper closure." At the time of writing, it's a little more than $3,600, though things can change quickly. It also currently sells out most of the time. Thankfully, Sondra will be dropping some from time to time, and you can find them on the site. One of my favorites, though, is the choice of the 1980's sequined Sondra tote from the 'Who Wants to Be a Millionaire' TV show. I got it at the thrift store last year for $50 (I think) and it's still a work of art. Take a look! have to read a line from the keyboard and then put the input to a string. But when i write the input, the text stays there after the function has been done, even though i have a fflush function in there. Here is my code : #include <stdio.h> char input_char; char buffer[15]; int main(int argc, char* argv[]) { FILE * fin; fgets(buffer, 15, stdin); fin = fopen("stron.txt","w"); fprintf(fin,"%s",buffer); return 0; } A: Because fgets will not read your input from stdin until it actually has something to put in your buffer. fgets reads until it encounters whitespace, including newlines.
